

GUNNEEN SCORES ODELLISM.

HIGGINS CANNOT CUT HIMSELF LOOSE FROM HIS CHIEF.

Graphic Arrangement at Big Turnout in Brooklyn of the Greer and His Methods—Jobs Created to Perpetuate the Rule of the Governor's Machine.

Attorney-General John Gunneen spoke before 2,000 Kings county voters last night at Atlantic Park, in Ralph avenue, Brooklyn. He got an enthusiastic reception and after the speechmaking hundreds stayed to shake his hand and give him personal pledges of support.

Edward Kaufman, County Clerk of Kings, presided, and introduced the speaker. The meeting was held under the auspices of the Parker and Davis campaign clubs of Kings county. In addition to Mr. Gunneen, Senator McCarran, Frank H. Mott, Luke D. Stapleton, J. Gratian McMahon and W. C. Burtope made short talks to the voters.

Mr. Gunneen's speech was devoted almost entirely to a condemnation of Odellism. He said:

"Republican members of the canal board have refused to adopt any action that contractors be required to offer unit prices and a lump sum at which to do each piece of the canal work, giving the State an option as to which to accept. Even so, a newspaper as the New York Tribune has endeavored in its news columns to create the impression that I was urging the lump sum plan in the interests of rich contractors, as poor contractors could not do all the work. It must know better than this, and it is strange how far these great papers go in attempting to mislead the public. It is well known that the law requires that the canal be divided into contract sections and let separately. It is contemplated that at even parts of sections shall be let separately.

"What I contend for is that if a lock or a bridge is to be let the contractor shall bid a definite sum for which he will do the work. The Republican members allow him to bid unit prices, a sum per yard for excavating rock, another sum per yard for excavating earth, a sum per yard for stone masonry, another sum per yard for concrete masonry. This allows the engineer in charge to classify the material excavated into rock or earth, the masonry into stone or concrete, and to estimate the quantities. It opens the door for a repetition of the same fraud in classification and estimates from which the State has suffered in the past.

"Special laws are becoming very frequent under the present administration of the State Government. Many of these are adopted under the guise of general statutes. They are likely to result in abuses and in part to favor communities or communities that give large Republican majorities. I don't know why it was done, but at the last session of the Legislature $2,000 was appropriated for the purpose of clearing the channel of Neversink River, in Orange county $10,000 was appropriated to regulate the flow of water in the same river, $35,000 was appropriated to construct dykes in the same neighborhood, to turn the waters of the Delaware River.

"I examined the natural histories of the State, encyclopedias and similar authorities, but failed to discover any mention of Neversink River as an artery of commerce. I finally wrote to a responsible citizen of Orange county and asked about the characteristics of the channel. He responded as follows: 'The Neversink River in this county is not navigable in any sense; they don't even use it to float logs. It is not large enough. No one ever uses it except to fish.'

"There can be, therefore, no justification for expending this large sum of money in the improvement of Neversink River. While these large appropriations are made in Orange county, to protect the property in that vicinity from being flooded at times of high water, appropriations for draining swamps, improving highways and similar improvements in Ulster and Seneca counties and elsewhere have been vetoed by the executive.

"The Odell-machine controlled the Republican State convention, boasted of its achievements in the government of the State, nominated a candidate for Governor, and forthrightly before the people. It was then called to account for having abolished the control of State hospitals by boards of benevolent people, and for having substituted the work because of love for God and humanity and having substituted for this control mercenary politicians, under whose rule the expenditure of public money has annually increased and the character of the care of the inmates constantly has deteriorated.

"It was called to account for having created a favorite canal contractor $18,418 extra compensation for alleged canal work, in violation of the Constitution and of the statutes, and for having paid to favorite corporations in aid of the private enterprise of manufacturing beet sugar $270,876.92 of the people's money, contrary to the Constitution of this State.

"It was called to account for having created unnecessary offices for the purpose of forcing a large machine to make a pecuniary the Board of Canal Appraisers, at an expense to the State of $25,000 a year, and for which there has been nothing to do.

"It was called to account for having attempted to impose a tax upon the farms of the State of over $37,000, to pay for a Highway Manual that was not needed, that was not demanded, and that was not needed for making a job for a Republican State committee which would net him over $20,000.

"It was called to account for having expended the people's money on the pretext of operating canals that are not in operation and have not been for years.

"It was called to account for having set up numerous different schemes of taxation which operate unjustly, each of which requires a separate arm of officials for its enforcement, who are not elected by the people or accountable directly to them, but are appointed under the direction and influence of the Governor, and who become his personal political agents in operating his political machine, at an expense to the State of approximately a million of dollars a year.

"Attention was brought to the demoralizing influence upon the public conscience of the Odell policy of soliciting votes in country counties upon the ground that justice has been done, and that the city of New York was unjustly compelled to pay their taxes, thus tending partly in the administration of the government as a whole, and partly in the conduct of the individual.

"The impropriety of the chief executive attending the Capitol and taking the power and prestige of his great office into the committee room of a political party, where contributions for campaign purposes are levied upon those who are dependent upon the law-making and executive power for favors, was unfavorably commented upon.

"The horrible spectacle of the Governor whose high office requires him to protect every citizen of the State from the exercise of the elective franchise standing at the head of a political party that taxed and harassed 200,000 of the people of this city with challenges, mostly unfounded, when the manifestations of disapproval of this behavior appeared on every side, the members of the firm of Odell & Higgins, which had worked so harmoniously for years to bring these results about, mutually announced its dissolution, and Mr. Higgins tried to cut himself free. Oh, but it is impossible for him to do so! He is bound by the legislative records of the State, by the records of the Canal Board, by his public speeches and by the promises of his unique political methods which are now distinguished by the term 'Odellism.' He has never opposed any of their official acts, he has aided in their adoption. The Republican State ticket stands for Odellism, and that ticket must answer for it on Nov. 8.

Change of Casino's Plans.

"The Farness Fiddlers" will follow "Puff, Puff, Puff" at the Casino opening on Nov. 21. It was originally intended to have Lillian Russell appear at the Casino after the run of "Puff, Puff, Puff" in her new comic opera "Lady Teazle." The Shuberts found they could not make ready this production in time.

SAYS $300 WENT IN ST. REGIS.

Man From Buenos Ayres Hung Up Coat With Wallet While He Was Being Shaved.

Juan A. Senillosa of Buenos Ayres, who has been stopping at the Hotel Marie Antoinette for several months, says he was robbed of $300 yesterday morning at the Hotel St. Regis. Senillosa was so agitated when he told his story to Sgt. Ennis at the East Fifty-first street police station, last night, that he could hardly talk.

Senillosa says he went into the barber shop of the St. Regis to get shaved yesterday morning. He hung his coat on a wall hook without thinking of a wallet containing $200 that was in an inside pocket. After he got shaved and put his coat on, he thought of the pocketbook and opened it. Two hundred dollars in bills was missing out of the $200, he says.

He says he complained at once to Manager Haan. Haan referred him to House Detective Kennedy. Kennedy sent him to the house detective of the Marie Antoinette. The house detective of the Marie Antoinette passed him on the West Sixty-eighth street police station and the police there sent him to the East Fifty-first street station.

Senillosa said he was tired to death and he looked pretty well fagged out. Manager Haan of the St. Regis refused to discuss Senillosa's story, and House Detective Kennedy said he didn't know anything about an alleged robbery in the barber shop. Senillosa insisted that his story was true and Sgt. Ennis promised to investigate the matter for him.

ARCHBISHOP ELDER VERY ILL.

His Physician Does Not Expect Him to Recover—Taken Ill on Friday.

CINCINNATI, O., Oct. 29.—Archbishop William Henry Elder, who was taken seriously ill yesterday, was pronounced no better at 9 o'clock to-night by his physician, Dr. W. E. Decoursey.

"His fever is higher," said Dr. Decoursey, "and he is getting weaker. I have diagnosed his ailment as grip, but he has not been very well for a year. He has had dizzy spells and other symptoms that go with grip. I do not think that the end will come to-night, but I do not expect him to recover from this illness."

PEDLERS CLUB EACH OTHER.

Women Shoppers See Greek Meet Greek and Chestnuts Ely on Third Avenue.

With a small army of women shoppers as spectators, six Greek street vendors battled with clubs on Sixth avenue at Twentieth street yesterday afternoon, and when the police declared the fight off all the contestants had to be attended by ambulance surgeons. Four of them were arrested.

The fight started when Peter and John Papos, brothers, who live at 521 East Fourteenth street, refused to vacate the spot at which they were selling chestnuts. They were ordered to move away by John Siev-enelis and Nick Telegardis, who also sell chestnuts and who have been longer in this country than the Papos brothers. When the brothers wouldn't move a battle began with the clubs which all four had in reserve to keep off bad boys.

The four Greeks whacked the heads of each other; four stands were overturned, and chestnuts and hot charcoal embers were scattered all over the battle ground. Soon two other Greeks took a hand in it with their clubs, but the onlookers could not tell which side they favored. It seemed as if the newcomers intended to stay where they could. When the first policeman came running up they disappeared. Not so with the four others. They kept at it.

A Sixth avenue shopkeeper telephoned to the Tenderloin station for the reserves. The reserves were sent to the battleground, but before they could get the fight was over. The bell-ringers were all dazed when a couple of husky policemen began to lay about them with their clubs. The neighborhood was free of peddlers for the rest of the afternoon.

HIGGINS SPEAKS IN OSWEGO.

Addresses a Big Republican Mass Meeting Which Is Preceded by a Parade.

OSWEGO, N. Y., Oct. 29.—Lieut.-Gov. Frank W. Higgins arrived here from Rochester to-day and during the noon hour addressed a big Republican mass meeting at the Richardson Theatre. Special trains brought marching clubs from Fulton and preceding the meeting there was a parade of hundreds of men and women. Higgins was one of the largest and most enthusiastic ever held here, and Lieut.-Gov. Higgins was warmly greeted.

Mr. Higgins defended his administration and read an extract from a newspaper article giving full refutation of the charges against him relative to his vote on the Furmanville road. He said that he was at length of the Civil Service laws and State charitable institutions and declared that if elected Governor the State would pay its debts and that he would not be a party to the extravagance in his letter of acceptance.

Judge J. L. Griffiths of Indianapolis, who accompanied Mr. Higgins, confined his remarks principally to Republicanism, and said that he was a Republican of long years and that he was a Republican of long years and that he was a Republican of long years.

The Lexington Avenue Dealer in Antiques a Victim of Heart Disease.

The man who fell dead of heart disease on Friday in Pavia avenue, near Barnum street, Jersey City, was identified yesterday as that of James V. Peniston, of 82 Lexington avenue, New York. The identification was made by Lawyer J. J. Thomasson of 95 Nassau street.

Peniston was a dealer in antiques in the same building where he had his residence. His daughter, who is a teacher, was worried by his absence from home and thought of a description of a man who fell down in Jersey City fitted him. The identification followed.

HARRISON SPEAKS IN BATAVIA

NO HALL BIG ENOUGH TO HOLD THE ANTI-ODELL VOTERS.

Large Overcrowded Meeting in the Open Air—Only One State Issue, He Says, and That Is Honestly in Public Affairs—Higgins a Part of the Odell Machine.

BATAVIA, N. Y., Oct. 29.—This city had no hall nearly big enough to hold the anti-Odell folks who wanted to hear Congressman Francis Burton Harrison, Citizens' candidate for Lieutenant-Governor, speak to-night. In Elliott Hall, which was only half filled a few weeks ago when Mr. Linn Bruce, Mr. Harrison's opponent, spoke here, some six hundred men and women were packed so tight that they could hardly breathe. Outside there was another meeting, nearly twice as large, which Mr. Harrison addressed briefly on his way to catch his train for New York, where he is running to see his new baby.

John H. Ryan, the county chairman of the Genesee Democrats, opened the meeting and turned it over to former Mayor W. F. Hantz. Former Fourth Assistant Postmaster-General Robert A. Maxwell brought Mr. Harrison out on the platform. The crowd went wild at once. For the last few days those who are campaigning with Mr. Harrison have noticed a steadily increasing intensity in the welcome which audiences give the Citizens' candidate for Lieutenant-Governor. Word has gone abroad of the aggressiveness and brilliancy of the fight he has been making through the Republican counties of the State, and the up-State Democrats know how to appreciate an uphill fighter when one comes among them, especially when they know, as they all do now, that he is winning his fight.

Mr. Harrison spoke on the invidiousness of the pretense of economy which accompanies the plan of indirect taxation, and of the stimulation which comes out of indirect taxation for graft and waste. There is but one issue in this great State of ours. It is not a partisan issue. If the word had not been so grossly perverted by members of the Odell administration I should say that it was an issue of simple business principles. But the word 'business' has taken a new meaning in the Empire State since Odell promised us a plain business administration, and showed us what he meant by it. [Laughter and applause.] The issue is prominently one as to whether New York State shall have public servants in whose conduct the affairs committed to their charge there can be no grounds for suspicion of their honesty of purpose.

"This State to-day is pervaded with grave doubts as to the honesty of purpose of many of the expenditures and measures of the present administration. Bear in mind that I make no charge against the personal integrity of Mr. Higgins. He has been a part of a machine, the complete tool of a machine that has carved its way through the treasury as smoothly and as easily as the shovels of the Furmanville Iron Company ploughed through the State treasury. I do not charge that members of the machine have used their offices for the fattening of their own pockets. A Republican Assistant Postmaster-General has made that charge, as I had the opportunity of telling some of Mr. Justice Hooker and Tax Commissioner Stearns' neighbors last night.

"We will say nothing which we cannot prove. Therefore we do not even intimate that any member of the Odell circle has fattened his private purse since that circle came into absolute power in the party and in the State. But we do say that wrongdoers have gone unpunished, that crimes have been winked at, that money has been scandalously wasted, that complaints of impropriety and inefficiency have been ignored whenever it has been necessary to strengthen the hands of the men who do the bidding of the most heartless reckless and selfish political organization that ever grasped the resources and the political assets of the greatest State of the greatest nation in the world. [Cheers and applause.] If you are with us tonight we'll be with you. No one can touch you. Go as far as you like."

"We believe that Mr. Higgins is a kind and generous man in his personal disposition. In public life he has shown himself kind and generous, too, as Mr. Herrick our great leader pointed out yesterday—kind to the friends of the Odell machine, generous with the money of the State. [Laughter.]

"Our contention from the outset of the campaign has been that if you turn off the money of Higgins you would find the face of Odell. The way in which this contention was first met was to ignore the issue. Then they came forward, led by Mr. Higgins himself, and undertook to deny that their candidate was in reality Mr. Odell's choice for the nomination, though he was altogether acceptable to Mr. Odell. The independent pendulum fell to the ground of its own flimsiness, and now, at last, in the desperation which has come upon them in these last few days of the campaign, they face the issue bravely and undertake to tell us what a good, economical, philanthropic Governor we have had for the last four years."

"The most surprising indication of this stage of the argument is illustrated by that good and scholarly man, the solemnly rosy-faced Mr. Low, in a speech made in Brooklyn last night. Mr. Odell and Mr. Higgins were coupled in Mr. Low's most finished phrases. Does he mean like Furmanville?"

John S. Crosby and C. A. MacHenry of New York city also spoke.

NOT HOSTILE TO LABOR.

Reorback About Jersey's Republican Gubernatorial Candidate.

TRENTON, N. J., Oct. 29.—When Collector Robert Davis, leader of the Democrats of Hudson county, secured the services of Joseph A. Mullaney, editor of the Bridgemen's Magazine and a prominent labor leader of the East, to get evidence upon which to base an attack on Edward C. Stokes, the Republican candidate for Governor, on the ground that he was hostile to the interests of labor, he let loose a political rocket which has created consternation in the camp of the Democrats.

Mullaney is a Democrat, and, in acting for Mr. Davis, his special mission was to inquire into Mr. Stokes' connection with the rubber strike in this city, resulting in the passage by the Central Labor Union of resolutions condemning Mr. Stokes, who is a small holder in one of the rubber companies, and who was treasurer up to about four weeks of the time the strike was declared. Mr. Mullaney discovered that, instead of urging the manufacturers to resist the claims of the men, Mr. Stokes had done all in his power to secure an amicable adjustment of the trouble. Failing in this, he had withdrawn from the company.

Mullaney also learned that the attack on Stokes had been planned at Democratic headquarters in Jersey City. The plan was to have Mr. Stokes' name brought up by George Labarre, chairman of the Democratic city committee, revised by Frank S. Kates, and would not be brought up by becoming a political lunkster, selling the principles of organized labor to the highest bidder. It is my firm opinion, however, that the plan was carried out, touching all sides of this question, and having the interests of organized labor in view, that the resolution passed by the Central Labor Union of Trenton is nothing more or less than a selling out to serve the interests of certain Democratic politicians; that it was concocted in the brain of Mayor Katzenbach, and that the plan was carried out by George Labarre, chairman of the Democratic city committee. I think it only fair that all the facts should be presented to the union men of New Jersey in order that they may not be misled by such political subterfuges as this, to the detriment of the cause.

MOBBED MAN WHO HIRED BOYS

FIFTEEN SENT SOUTH TO WORK FOR LUMBER CONCERN.

Excited Italian Crowd Assails Agent—Promises as to Pay and Care Not Kept, They Say—Man Arrested Says No False Representations Were Made.

The police of the Morrisania station arrested last night an Italian who said he was Vincenzo Cioffi of 55 Duane street, Williamsbridge, on the charge of having enclosed fifteen or more Italian boys, ranging in age from 14 to 16 years, away from their homes in The Bronx. The boys were taken by the Italian, the police say, to Goldboro, N. C., to work for a lumber company.

According to the police, Cioffi appeared in the Italian quarter of The Bronx known as Frog Hollow about two weeks ago and began offering boys $10 a week to work for the company. He got a gang of about twenty together and started; but two deserted before he got them out of the city. Complaints were made to the police in The Bronx by the parents of the boys, but recently a strange Italian has been visiting the fathers and mothers, telling them not to depend on the police and to have nothing to do with them, as he would see that the boys all got back safely. On account of this the parents, the police say, have not cooperated with them.

About 9 o'clock last night one of the two boys who had deserted the gang saw Cioffi standing at Morris avenue and Third street talking with a crowd of ten or twelve boys. The lad quickly spread the alarm, and the parents of the missing ones gathered from all directions, reinforced by their friends. Cioffi was attacked and his clothes were torn.

It took for a few minutes as though he might be killed, but Bicycle Policemen Webster, assisted by Patrolman Doyle, broke through the crowd and hustled him away to the Morrisania station house. The crowd there continued to grow, and when the prisoner reached the station house there were several hundred of them, following, jeering and uttering threats.

"He stole the boys; he's the one," they yelled. He admitted to the police that he had taken the boys South, but he said he did it in the interest of the lumber company and that he had used no improper means of influencing the boys to go. In his pocket was found a letter addressed to "Julien Bros." in this city which read as follows:

Please bring down more Italian labor as we are greatly in need of more. Fare will be $9.70. I will be in town around Oct. 10 to 12. W. H. B. Blandford, Secretary.

One of the boys who went to North Carolina is Leopold Fantucci, son of Frank Fantucci, who keeps a saloon at 461 East 151st street. Fantucci has received a letter from his son, which the police have now. The boy says in the letter that he and his companions were promised $10 a week, but that they are getting only 70 cents a day; that they sleep in the bushes and are guarded by negroes with shotguns.

The police now have eight complaints lodged against Cioffi and they expect there will be several more before morning. Down to a late hour last night a crowd of angry Italians continued to hang around the station house doors talking excitedly and acting as though they feared the prisoner might escape.

Parker in Jersey City Tuesday Night.

Bob Davis, the Democratic leader of Hudson county who took several hundred Jersey pilgrims to Esopus on Oct. 21, received word yesterday that Judge Parker will return the call on Tuesday night. The Presidential candidate will speak in Jersey City. Arrangements are being made to have him appear at meetings in Elks' and St. Peter's Halls. Judge Parker will talk in Newark on the same day.

COAL FOR THE STATE PRISONS.

Contract Not to Be Awarded to Secretary of State O'Brien Until After Election.

ALBANY, Oct. 29.—Secretary of State John F. O'Brien does not propose to permit his Dock and Coal Company of Plattsburg to forego the profit in furnishing coal to Sing Sing, Auburn and Clinton prisons for the present State fiscal year, beginning Oct. 1. The State Superintendent of Prisons, Cornelius V. Collins of Troy, although he has had in his possession since before Oct. 1 the bids for furnishing coal to the prisons for the present fiscal year, announces that he is not to award the contract for furnishing this coal until after election. Then, if Odellism is triumphant through the election of Mr. Higgins as Governor, Mr. O'Brien's Dock and Coal Company can continue furnishing coal for the three prisons named, which consume about $50,000 worth of coal a year.

The annual prison coal contract each year so exposed before the end of the present fiscal year. When asked the cause of the delay this year in awarding this coal contract, Superintendent of Prisons Collins gave two reasons.

The first was that there was sufficient coal on board for present needs and that the storage capacity at Dannemora had been curtailed and that if the coal was delivered and left in the open air it would deteriorate. The other reason was that he was testing the soft coal offered by the lowest bidder for Auburn prison because his price was so low and that he wanted to let the contract for all the prisons at one and the same time, which, he said, would be done at the conclusion of the Auburn prison coal test. Mr. Collins said this test would not be concluded until after election.

Auburn is the only prison which uses soft coal, and Mr. Collins said he did not want to let the contract for hard coal until he let the contract for the soft coal. A prominent Albany coal dealer to-day said that the price was so low and that he wanted to let the contract for all the prisons at one and the same time, which, he said, would be done at the conclusion of the Auburn prison coal test. Mr. Collins said this test would not be concluded until after election.

TWO WAYS TO DIE FAILED.

Man Who Stabbed Himself and Jumped Into the River Recovering at Bellevue.

John Stahlman, 30 years old, an employee of a restaurant at West and Peck streets, was rescued from drowning in the North River yesterday morning by a member of the crew of the tugboat C. C. Clark. When taken out of the water it was found that he was suffering from a deep gash in the back of his neck, evidently inflicted by a penknife.

As nearly as could be learned Stahlman had finished his work early in the morning and had immediately gone on board the Erie ferryboat McLaughlin. When the ferryboat was well out in the stream a deck-hand saw him leap on the rail, stab himself, and jump into the water. The tide quickly carried Stahlman away from the ferryboat.

He was put ashore and sent to Bellevue Hospital.
